AMERICAN TROOPS MOVE IN ON THE VILLAGE OF KASSERINE AFTER THEY OUST GERMANS FROM STRATEGIC PASS

Occupation of Gap Effected by Infantry, Combat Engineers, and Medium Tank Forces Virtually Without Opposition—Counter-Attack Successful

By Robert G. Nixon
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Feb. 26.—(INS)—American troops moved in on the Tunisian village of Kasserine today as they pursued retreating German forces which were ousted from strategic Kasserine Pass after a heavy artillery bombardment.

Occupation of the Kasserine Gap was effected by American infantry, combat engineers and medium tank forces virtually without opposition.

The advance by the Americans who retook the gap in a successful counter-attack which removed an Axis threat against the Allied base of Tebessa in Algeria and the road junction of Thala was made following a night-long artillery barrage. Recapture of the pass terminated a bitter armored engagement begun a week ago tonight when Nazi General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces shelled American positions heavily prior to seizing the Gap last Saturday.

International News Service staff correspondent Graham Hovey described in a dispatch from the front how he watched the American engineers clear out the minefields planted in the pass by the retreating Germans and Italians.

From a high ridge east of the gap Hovey saw the victorious American forces reach the crest of the pass and start down toward the valley stretching southeast to the tiny village of Kasserine.

The tank forces followed the engineers closely while the United States infantry advanced on the right flank. At one point they ran into light machine-gun fire and a mortar barrage which lasted only a brief time.

"Aside from that," Hovey reported, "the enemy has not been heard from since his brief, heavy shelling of our forward tank positions in the Hatab Valley northwest of the pass late Wednesday afternoon."

American military observers were quick to point out that recapture of the pass, although it is not an overwhelming victory, represented a successful counter-attack removing a serious threat to Allied positions.

The U. S. Army task force which rushed into the Hatab Valley following German occupation of Kasserine Gap last Saturday smashed three attempts of the enemy to advance before finally driving Rommel's units back through the pass.

Rommel's main forces were believed to have withdrawn from Kasserine village from where they continued their retreat toward Gafsa, 50 miles to the south.

"Rastus" Keeps Promise; Returns To M. E. Church

"Rastus" kept his promise and returned last evening to the Bristol Methodist Church, Mulberry and Cedar streets. The occasion was the first showing of the production "The Methodist Minstrel Maids," an old time minstrel show. It will be repeated this evening.

The scenery and costumes were very appropriate. The back-drop was of a large slice of watermelon, and looked real enough to eat. The "Maids" were dressed as Aunt Jemimas, and the inter-lucator in sport clothes, and, of course, white face.

The sketch "A Southern School Room" was very good, and showed the first day at school. Charles Rathke acted as the school teacher. A very impressive part of this act was the opening exercises, when the pupils all gave the salute to the American flag, led by their teacher.

The show was thoroughly enjoyed by a large audience. Following is the cast:

Mrs. Richard Winslow, Miss Ida Hampton, Miss Charlotte Rathke, Miss Edith Kershaw, Miss Elizabeth Wilkinson, Mrs. Robert Kelso, Miss Mildred Houser, Miss Alma Rathke, Mrs. Arthur Peterson, Miss Irene Hanck, Miss Violet Ruth Hanck, Miss Helen Appleton, Miss Ella May Smith, Mrs. Lee VanGilder, end man; Miss Louise Smoyer, end man; Charles Rathke, inter-lucator; and Miss Dorothy Eel-man, accompanist. The script for the show was written by Charles G. Rathke, and the whole production is being produced under his direction.

The show is being sponsored by the choir of Bristol Methodist Church.

DENVER—(INS)—So you thought "doodling" was something comparatively new? Well, you're wrong. Doodling, according to Charles F. Ramus, of the Denver University art department, dates back as far as the 13th Century when, of all people, the monks who copied religious works relieved the tedium by doodling in the margins.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught, Syndicate, Inc.)

Politics, Good and Bad

Washington, Feb. 25.

IT would be fine, of course, if while the war is on all political considerations could be banished from the minds of our rulers and, without regard to parties or elections, every energy be concentrated upon the conduct of the war. That was the idea promulgated right after Pearl Harbor. Nearly all our public men from the President down proclaimed it as their own.

BUT, it just does not work out — and for a number of reasons. One is that, even in a great crisis, politicians capable of rising to so high a plane are exceedingly rare. There may be a few such here, but they certainly are not in positions of power either in the executive or legislative branches of the Government. Even if there were it would be an exceedingly difficult thing to do. Our normal political processes, very properly, have not been suspended and the fact that we had an election last fall certainly has not interfered with the conduct of the war. On the contrary, there is a very good argument that loss of control of Congress by the Administration has had beneficial results.

THE FACT IS that the resumption of its independence by the Congress is the only effective corrective to Administration arrogance, blundering and wastefulness. Without that there would be no check on the excesses toward which so many of the new agencies tend. In this and some other respects Congressional post-election politics up to the present has worked well from the public standpoint. Whether this will continue remains to be seen, but one thing is certain — politics will be increasingly in the minds of everybody here as the 1944 conventions, now hardly more than a distant prospect, draw near.

PRESIDENT SENDS MacARTHUR PRAISE FOR AIR OFFENSIVE

Non-Stop Allied Aerial Offensive Exact Heavy Toll of Vessels

SIX MORE SHIPS BLASTED

Land Campaign Along Papuan Coast Has Decimated The Enemy

By Lee Van Atta
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Feb. 26.—The non-stop Allied aerial offensive against Japanese shipping in the Southwest Pacific which has exacted a three-day toll of 16 enemy vessels was commended today by President Roosevelt in a special message to Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

"The efficient bombardment launched by your air forces during the past few weeks, especially the last few days," said the President, "supports the situation in the Solomons and in furtherance of your own operations commands our admiration."

The President's message was made public along with a communique announcing that six more Japanese ships had been blasted in addition to the 10 damaged or sunk on Tuesday and Wednesday.

President Roosevelt at the same time took occasion to congratulate General MacArthur on the successful ground operations of his American and Australian troops which ousted the Japanese from the jungles of the Papua Territory.

"The arduous land campaign along the Papuan coast which has decimated the enemy and now threatens him at Salamaua has made a great impression on our people and must have a demoralizing effect on Japanese confidence in the fighting efficiency of their ground troops," he said.

"My thanks go to you, your leaders, and to the officers and men of the Australian and United States forces who carried the fight to the enemy at all levels over great distances and even greater difficulties."

HUNDREDS WITNESS PRESENTATION OF ARMY-NAVY 'E' AWARD TO PLANT 1 OF FLEETWINGS; PROGRAM BROADCAST

Representatives of Army and Navy, Also Aircraft Industry, Attend Ceremonies Conducted in Huge Heated Tent—Lt. Col. Tracy Richardson Presents Pennant—Commander Gary Norton Bestows Lapel Insignias

Ceremonies attendant upon presentation of the Army-Navy production award at Plant 1 of Fleetwings, Inc., yesterday afternoon, were witnessed by representatives of those two branches of the armed forces of the United States, representatives of the aircraft industry, and hundreds of employees of the firm connected with the plant receiving the "E" pennant.

With a huge green and white tent, heated for the occasion, serving as the setting, a huge throng made its way there at 4.15 as music was provided by a soldiers' band from Fort Dix, N. J.

The impressive and inspiring ceremony reached a climax as Lt. Colonel Tracy Richardson of the U. S. Army Air Corps, presented the "E" pennant to employees of Plant 1, with acceptance being made by Frank deGanahl, president of Fleetwings, Inc. Other highlights of the day were the presentation of the Army-Navy "E" lapel insignias, received by designated employees on behalf of their co-workers; and the unfurling of the Fleetwings service flag honoring the young women and young men, former employees, who have entered the service of their country.

The raising of the American flag as the band played marked the start of the ceremonies. The flag was raised by a color guard composed of: Corp. Joseph Rossi, U. S. Army Air Corps, now enroute to officers training school at Camp Davis, N. C.; Narciso Ragados, wounded Philippine veteran of the present war and now serving as a guard at the Fleetwings plant; Jacob C. Schmidt, Past Commander of Ninth District, American Legion; and Harold D. James, commander of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion. Fred Brindley, accompanied by the band, sang "America."

Sylvan H. Hirsch, Phila. attorney for Fleetwings, served as master of ceremonies. In part Mr. Hirsch said: "It must be with great joy and personal satisfaction that you, the owners and employees of Plant 1 of Fleetwings, gather here today in great numbers for the distinguished honor of being presented with the Army and Navy 'E' award in recognition of your excellent performance in the production of airplane parts for the United States Army and Navy Air Corps. I cannot help observing that the pleasure of this gathering is in marked contrast to many other gatherings of people that have been held throughout the world during the last few years. It was during that period that Hitler and his barbaric hordes, by stealth or force of arms, invaded one nation after another—Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Denmark, Norway, Holland, Belgium, France, the Balkan States, Greece and Russia. In each of these invaded countries, people likewise gathered in large numbers, but under far different circumstances and for entirely different purposes. There, they were gathered by force and edict to be told by the ruthless invader that no longer could they enjoy the freedoms to which they had been long accustomed, or the privileges that go with the free way of life. There, they were old by Hitler's Gauleiters or Quislings had henceforth, they could no longer speak or worship or live as they wished—that henceforth, they were subject to the orders and commands of the Fuehrer, whose only purpose was to subjugate, disfranchise, rob, pillage, massacre and enslave them."

"But in marked contrast, you are gathered together here today of your own free will and accord and for vastly different reasons. You are gathered, as free persons, in a free country, to be honored—not persecuted. You are gathered to receive the Army and Navy 'E' award, signifying that through the excellence of your performance, you are doing your full share to supply our armed forces with the material and equipment which will enable them, together with our Allies, to end the tyrannical rule of the Axis and their subjugation of defenseless

NEEDED WORKERS

Offerings of estimates on the number of unemployed in the United States are infrequent these days, although this is a field in which a few years ago statistics were liberally tossed about if not always reliable. In a recent survey the Guaranty Company of New York puts the figure at 1,900,000 persons, of which approximately one-half represent the irreducible minimum.

The survey contends that the country this year can come into a particularly knotty manpower problem over a sufficiency of working hands to keep the supplies needed by the population flowing.

It is estimated in the survey that the country has perhaps 7,000,000 men in the armed forces, 17,000,000 in war industries, and that these groups will require an additional 6,000,000 this year. Continues the survey:

"There is some reason to believe that the branches of production and trade supplying goods and service for the civilian population have already passed through the period of heaviest losses of personnel. These losses, however, have been very great and their effects on business and on civilian life as a whole will undoubtedly become more pronounced as time goes on."

The survey places the nation's total manpower needs by the end of 1943 at 65,000,000 against approximately 59,000,000 employed at present. If the present unemployed sources supply 1,000,000 of the needed 6,000,000 additional persons, 5,000,000 not ordinarily constituting a part of the labor forces will have to be drawn for employment this year, and of these new recruits to the labor field the Guaranty Trust survey concludes that the majority must be women.

FOOD FOR RUSSIA

Victories being achieved by their armies are undoubtedly helping the people of the Soviet Union bear up under the deprivation of food they are suffering, the extent of which may not be known until after the war.

It is known that Russia is on a more rigorous ration than any other of the United Nations, the situation there being such that it is estimated by the lend-lease administrator in a report to Congress that in 1943 more than half the food furnished by this country under lend-lease will go to Russia.

The heaviest food-producing area in Russia has been out of operation for two growing seasons. Overrun by Hitler's hosts, this breadbasket of the country has produced a minimum. In other parts of Russia lack of transportation facilities has interrupted distribution, and although little news is permitted to pass the Russian censor, enough reaches the United States through official channels to emphasize the desperate need of food.

Last year the United States used most of the available shipping space for getting munitions to Russia. This year it will put emphasis upon food shipments, and until such supplies reach Russia in volume victories on the battlefield will aid the Russians in holding hunger at bay.

Soon everything will be frozen except the route by which lambs ducks gravitate to the federal payroll.

Daily bulletins relating how Gandhi is getting along with his fast should be classified as dog-bites-man news.

than sixteen months away, approach. This is natural and inevitable.

EVIDENCES OF THIS multiply both in the Administration and in Congress. If each politically stimulates the other to action in the national interests the outcome will be fortunate, indeed. Unhappily, however, there are indications that the rivalry between the President and an independent Congress may become a rivalry in demagoguery rather than a rivalry in statesmanship. If, instead of striving to outdo each other in service for the general good, each tries to outmaneuver the other in appealing to certain class interests and prejudices, the effect will be bad.

SOME OBSERVERS feel that this sort of jockeying is even now going on with the tax situation. On the one hand the Administration is still opposing the sales tax. Neither its opposition to the Ruml pay-as-you-go plan nor the President's most recent $25,000 income limit centric are based on sound fiscal policy. When analyzed, the $25,000 proposal would affect so few people and bring in so little revenue that it becomes more than a little absurd. The former is so sound that the Administration is compelled to accept part of it anyhow. It shies away from the complete proposal, not for fiscal but for quite obvious political reasons.

ON THE other hand, there is obviously a disposition in Congress to meet politics with politics. Senators and House Leaders say they do not intend to let the Administration put Congress in position where it can be demagogically accused of legislating in behalf of the upper brackets and unduly burdening the lowest income group. In brief, both sides are considering this vital business in terms of votes. Neither intends to be pushed into what they think is the weak political spot. Apparently, the President proposes to continue emphasizing the New Deal slogan of "soak the rich," though the saturation point having been reached it clearly isn't possible to soak them any harder without soaking everybody else proportionately harder still. And, apparently, Congress does not propose to let the President go into his fourth-term campaign, which his friends are now openly promoting, claiming to be the one exclusive and original "poor man's friend." On both sides the pretensions are insincere and unreal. And they are, at the moment, the chief obstacle to the enactment of a sound and adequate tax program.

—O—

ACTUALLY, the whole tax question is in danger of being smeared with politics by men who have their minds on next year's campaign.

This is not true of the few like Senator George, of Georgia, who qualify as tax authorities. But it is true of the bulk of them. Perhaps a public sentiment may develop as a corrective for this state of affairs. The trouble is that that kind of public sentiment depends upon public understanding and, to put it mildly, the public mind is more than a little muddy on the subject. Nor has it been clarified by the recent Treasury-inspired radio discussions—quite the reverse.

tion is in danger of being smeared with politics by men who have their minds on next year's campaign. This is not true of the few like Senator George, of Georgia, who qualify as tax authorities. But it is true of the bulk of them. Perhaps a public sentiment may develop as a corrective for this state of affairs. The trouble is that that kind of public sentiment depends upon public understanding and, to put it mildly, the public mind is more than a little muddy on the subject. Nor has it been clarified by the recent Treasury-inspired radio discussions—quite the reverse.

sure to visit the Grand Theatre this week, where "The Black Swan" is showing. This Technicolor adventure triumph, starring Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara, is far and away the most outstanding film of its type the screen has seen this or any other season.

Picture, if you will, the entertainment dish that is served. Tyrone Power, in our book one of the finest of screen actors by virtue of his ability to do anything and everything extremely well, is in a role that is hand-tailored for him. As Pirate Captain "Jamey" Waring, he gets every opportunity to display those qualities that have kept him at the top of the heap for the last five years.

There is one performer in Hollywood who is glad that his first motion picture dramatic scene will be his last. It's Bob Hope, who is featured in "Thanks For The Memory," along with Shirley Ross, Charles Butterworth and Otto Kruger. The picture opens today at the Bristol Theatre.

A set in quadruplicate was the answer of Producer Edward Small to the school problem in making the new Shirley Temple starring vehicle, "Miss Annie Rooney," which starts a run at the Ritz Theatre on Friday, March 5th.

That problem, incidentally, is a producer's biggest headache in shooting a film which features youngsters of school age. Small had to figure out the time problem not only for Shirley but also for Dickie Moore and Roland Du Pree, featured juveniles, and some twenty other children used as extras.

So, before the picture started, Small came up with the idea for a four-way set which would save every possible minute between shots. Scenes for the picture were to be made variously on Park Avenue, on the east side of New York, in Central Park and in a swank penthouse apartment.

A set was built which stretched from wall to wall of a sound stage 200 feet long and 65 feet wide. In the center was a glistening black pavement of macadam. On one side of the street were shabby walk-up apartments and on the other side palatial marble-fronted apartment hotels.

At one end of the sound stage avenue were trees and lawns representing Central Park in the spring and at the other end was a complete penthouse apartment.

Faith Clark's SHOPPING TIPS FOR BUDGETEERS

BEAUTIFUL FLOORS, which stay beautiful a long time, can be attained with the splendid wax which the Snellenburg Store is now featuring in its Housewares Dept. It is "Cello Wax," different because it contains more pure wax of the kind that is best for floors and lacks harmful ingredients. It needs no rubbing and is easily washable when dry. Well worth the price of 59c per pint to $2.98 per gal. The manufacturer claims that tests show it to be three to five times as durable as old style floor waxes. Find it in this store's excellent Housewares Dept., 3rd fl. You'll thank me, by golly!

DUTCH TREAT! And it is a treat to see how the heroic Dutch carry on the war above and under ground against the Axis. The progressive Snellenburg Auditorium is the first to present "No Surrender!"—an exhibition of how courageous Hollanders fight back. Besides a stirring moving picture, there are photographs, murals, cartoons, dioramas, costumes, etc., of fascinating interest. Showings to March 6th inclusive, at 11:30, 2:30 and 4:00, with a Wednesday 7:30 evening performance. (3rd fl.)

SOME NOTION DEPT.! Both decorators and merchandise folks have been busy in the Snellenburg Notion Dept. Cases and counters have all been attractively rearranged to accommodate the splendid new and complete stock of tools and accessories women are demanding for the patriotic wave of Duration dressmaking. Here one finds many things very hard to get indeed and, wonder of wonders, mostly at pre-Duration prices. To sew quickly and well have needful, dependable things at hand. This shop has 'em! (1st fl.)

DID YOU EVER! Beds—single or twins—is among the unpainted furniture in the Snellenburg Housewares Dept. And night tables and bedroom chairs, chests, and everything! Now we can have stunning new bedroom suits for almost a song, or a shade we like best. The splendid beds cost but $8.98 apiece, chairs $1.49 each, chests $9.84, credenza shelves $4.95. Wonderful for young people's rooms or the extra guest room. Moreover, you can find your paints right across the way in the same department. Girls, this is an opportunity. The furniture is made right in the City so that the prices are minus factory shipping charges! (3rd fl.)

P.S. Shop, write, or 'phone for any of these good things. Free calls to 15c on Enterprise 10160. Faithfully, FAITH.

SPORTSMEN'S BRIEFS

By JOE ELBERSON

More good stocking news! The Edgely Rod & Gun Club released 42 cock pheasants and three dozen cottontails in territory around Edgely several days ago. Harry Pittman, one of the Club's game committee, said the pheasants were in very good condition, but that the rabbits were not as good as consignments received from the Pennsylvania Game Commission in other years. Transportation difficulties probably account for this poor condition since some of the rabbits are shipped long distances from outside the State.

Here are the committee members for the current year of the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association. Ollie Hobbs heads the Fish Committee and we're satisfied he and his committee will have a well-balanced program for the Izak Waltons in the Association. Hobbs has quite an enviable record both with the fly rod and the plug casting rod. Other members of the committee include: Harry Bossler, Robert Burd, Harvey Cochran, Joseph Kohler and Jack Gavegan.

Howard Black, "Baseball Blackie," heads the Game Committee. He's a good man for this job. He's hunted in lower Bucks, as well as all over the State and in other states, for many a year and he's familiar with the game problems in this area. Other members include William Bossler, one of the most efficient game distributors the Association ever had. He is equally well acquainted with the game problems in this area. Besides Black and Bossler the committee includes Peter Cattani, Elmer Yorty and Frank Flynn.

Members of the Trap Committee are Howard Asay, chairman, Joseph Rubino, Mahlon Naylor, James Mayberry, Frank Patterson, J. S. Lynn, Guy Nordin, and Harvey Cochran. The Reformation Committee chairman is Harry Bossler and other members include Harry Morrell, Peter Cattani and Edward Bonfrancesco.

Delegates to the Bucks County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs are John Johnson and Nuzio Rubino. The alternate delegates are Donald Meyer, Harry Katielife and Howard Asay.

Want an opportunity to do a little traveling around the Commonwealth on paper? If you write to the Pennsylvania Game Commission they'll send you a free copy of the "Sportsman's Map of Pennsylvania." It really is a worthwhile map and shows the location of State Game Lands; State Forests; State Game Farms; Primary Game Refuges; Game Propagation Areas; Dog Training Preserves; Archery Hunting Preserves; Roads, Streams, etc.

A check on the sale of Pennsylvania Fishing Licenses in Bristol for the first six weeks of this year revealed that 35 fishermen (who have the bug awnt had) have already purchased licenses! This figure will multiply many times by the time April has rolled around. You can buy your fishing license at the Municipal Building, Auto Boys, or Checker Stores.

Talked with Gene Gerhart, Bensalem Township farmer and sportsman, the other morning. He says that flocks of robins have been congregating on his farm, which borders the Neshaminy Creek, for the past two weeks. We hope this is a sure sign that Mr. Groundhog was wrong on February 2nd! And speaking of robins... did you ever stop to think of the blessings the fishing fraternity would bestow on the person who could train robins to catch worms for the fisherman, just as the Falcon and other birds have been trained to hunt game and fish?

Bell Telephone Co. To Give Demonstration

Instructions to the various emergency groups must be sent out. Groups already out may be redirected to new trouble spots.

The demonstration shows the relationship of each civilian defense worker to the united defense program and the important part each man and woman plays during an air raid.

It also emphasizes the importance of the telephone in keeping the various groups co-ordinated and the need of keeping telephone lines clear during and for some time after air raids so that there shall be no delay in the completion of emergency calls.

The demonstration is followed by a moving picture entitled "Target for Tonight," which is an actual photographic record of an English bomber squadron in action over Germany.

people. The tide of battle has begun to turn, as Churchill has said, "We have climbed the hill and are now ready to descend." And while the victory we all seek will be hard and costly, it nevertheless is assured.

"Three years ago, this Company, in-

In his speech of acceptance Frank deGaulle, president of Fleetwings, reminded the employees that the pennant is "not merely a token of work well done, but a challenge to greater effort in the future." He mentioned that the common aim of management and labor is to obtain "teamwork for victory, carried through for enduring peace." He congratulated the workers in attaining such a goal and award and asked that the work of the Fleetwings "team" be intensified.

Commander Gary Norton, U. S. N. R. Bureau of Aeronautics, presented the token awards of the "E" lapel insignias. He addressed the gathering thus: "The deeper we go into war the less difference we find in America in the armed forces and those in civilian dress. We claim in practicing democracy that we are conforming to the highest in self-discipline." In making the presentation to four representatives of Fleetwings employees Commander Norton saluted with these words "Well done, Fleetwings!" The lapel insignias were accepted by the following on behalf of their co-workers: Miss Gladys R. Wink and Alfred Ziegler, female and male employees with longest record of continuous service; Russel M. Stanton, president of Local 130, U. A. W. C. I. O.; and Joseph Birk, chairman of the shop executive committee, Local 130. The band selection at this juncture was "Anchors Aweigh."

Mr. Hirsch introduced Mr. Stanton, president of the local union who spoke briefly.

In unfurling the service flag, honoring 768 former employees now in service, the master of ceremonies stated:

"In unfurling this flag, you, who remain here hard at work on the production front, do honor to those employees who are now hard at work on the fighting front. In addition, two new service honor roll boards have been erected at Plants 1 and 2, and this service flag will be hung in the lobbies of those plants."

"All of us here have a direct obligation to those boys who have entered the service, and to every other member of the armed forces. We are now engaged in a war in which the forces of freedom are pitted against the forces of hate and oppression and no one may relax their efforts until that war and the peace are won forever."

"While the letter 'E' in this emblem signifies Excellence, I feel that likewise every letter in the word Emblem has significance. The first letter 'E' stands for Effort and Energy you have unstintingly put into your work and which you must continue to do in the future. 'M' stands for the Manpower represented by you thousands of employees who are working together as a unit to produce the finest weapons in all the world, in order that our armed forces may carry on to victory. 'B' stands for the Brainwork, which you each give to your work to assure that it is done carefully and well. 'L' stands for the Loyalty you have shown to your job, your employer, and above all, to your country. 'E' is for the Enlistment—each of you has voluntarily entered into for the duration to assure that arms and equipment will go forward to our armed forces in ever-increasing numbers. 'M' is for Might that is mustered by our nation, when everyone, such as you, works for victory! Together, these letters E-M-B-L-E-M spell Emblem and this Emblem, because it signifies Excellence in performance, spells "Victory."

The Rev. Arthur F. Gibson, chaplain of Bracken Post of the American Legion, offered a prayer for the men in the service; the exercises closing by group singing of the national anthem, American flags, miniature "E" pen-
